Dear friends,

We hear today the from Isaiah a truly revolutionary message - that God is the God of all people. He isn't just a local god for some people. God is the creator of all, he calls everybody to come to him...and he does this, because having made us, he knows that the only place where we can find true happiness and fulfilment is in him. We have been given the great privilege of living in the community of his love known as the Church; we have access to him through his sacraments, through the scriptures, and through our own prayers. We should gives thanks for this always.

But this isn't enough - if we are going to live in God, then we need to have the same love which he had. That love for everybody, a love which means we want to draw them into the same relationship with God that we have. As Pope Francis has written "evangelisation is the real and essential mission of the Church." We are all part of that Church, so we should often ask ourselves how are lives are contributing to that evangelisation.

Blessings, Fr. Thomas.
