"For every one who exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted."

Dear friends,

If there is one person who really knows what he is talking about with this phrase it is Christ. His whole earthly life was working towards the fulfilment of this - consider where he started: the Word of God who spoke the universe into existence, the all-powerful second Person of the Trinity. From this he chose to become a man - and whatever we may think about humanity, by comparison with God we are nothing.

We know how this plan worked out with Christ. He has ascended into heaven, taking our humanity with him. His humility can lead to our exaltation, if...if only we will unite ourselves to him. But that means that we have to join him in that humility.

Christ's message to us today is not just about dinner party etiquette and how to avoid awkward social situations - it is about how to get into heaven. If we are able to imitate Christ, to be united to him, to share in his humility, then we will hear that line 'Friend, go up higher' calling us to the heights of heaven.

Blessings, Fr. Thomas.
